

I am opposed to the RAF proposal. I know several young people who would like to become amateur radio operators but who find the current Technician class test too difficult. I believe if they had their novice licenses they would benefit and in the future perhaps learn more and obtain advanced ranks. This proposal would make it much more difficult for them to get involved.
Thanks.